

09 052,992

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of producing two domains within a liquid crystal layer by first forming two electrodes on a substrate, using a liquid crystal layer aligned vertically with respect to the substrate formed on the substrate where the substrate has two electrodes separated from each other with a selected distance. Finally, an electric field between the two electrodes is applied.

10